Los Angeles, CA – February 7, 2011 – Sublime Entertainment and Soul Mining Productions present Death, A Very Serious Comedy, a satirical play about an Iranian-American's surreal journey in the afterlife, premiering on Saturday, February 19, 2011 at The Wilshire Ebell Theatre in Los Angeles.

Upon discovering he has lost his life savings in a local Ponzi scheme, a Beverly Hills businessman (Fariborz David Diaan) suffers a heart attack that sends him straight to the gates of heaven. But that is only the beginning of a hilarious musical journey in which he confronts his demons and seeks redemption.

"While delving into the subjects of death, missed opportunities, and regrets, this play is in essence a celebration of life and a humorous exploration of human folly," states Amir Ohebsion, who co-wrote the play with Diaan.

Directed by Jon Kellam and Paul Quinn, and brought to life by a dynamic and diverse cast, Death, A Very Serious Comedy examines the amusing causes and consequences of one immigrant's misguided pursuit of the American dream, while touching on universal themes of reflection and redemption.

"My mission as a writer and performer in an immigrant community has always been to entertain and enlighten through satire," states Diaan. "I aspire to give my audience an opportunity to look inside their own lives from an outside perspective."

Diaan and Ohebsion previously collaborated on Liquid Productions, a theatrical company that mounted productions of "The Belind Date & The Veddin'" and "The Liquid Talk Show" to consistently sold-out venues in Los Angeles, San Francisco, and New York. "Death" marks their long-awaited reunion on stage.
